

SOUVENIR DU PROFESSEUR MAXIME CORNU

Posted on 2018, June 6th by The Peony Society

The very large, slightly fragrant, double flowers have deep yellow petals, edged cerise-pink and buff. They are heavily flushed with magenta pigment when young, but this colour fades as the flower matures while the orange and red tints intensify. This hybrid is readily available, but the flowers are very heavy and tend to hang among the foliage. ((footnote: Page, Martin. "The Gardener's Peony." USA: Timber Press, 2005, p. 175))

Also sold as 'Kinkaku' (Golden Pagoda).
